PRIMARY ELECTION

Republicans Nominate Stetser, Brown, McDaniel And Taylor

OVER 16,000 VOTES WERE CAST

The Republican primary election Saturday for County and Legislative offices resulted in one of the most spirited contests witnessed in the county for many years.

While most of the contests were decided by substantial majorities for the victors, the keen interest in the result added zest to the election. The feature of the election was the contest between Albert Stetser and Harry I. Gillis for Recorder of Deeds. Stetser won by a majority of 2084.

For Sheriff, Thomas A. McDaniel was returned an easy winner, his plurality being 545 over Samuel K. Parker, his nearest opponent.

Charles A. Taylor won a close contest in a three-cornered fight for coroner, defeating Isaac S. Bullock, the present coroner, by the narrow margin of 368 votes. William C. Brooks, contender, polled only about one-seventh of the votes cast.

Isaac R. Brown, for Register of Wills, was easily a victor over Julian C. Walker, Brown's majority being 5362.

In the state senatorial contests, the feature was the defeat of Senator James W. Robertson for renomination by Captain William A. Simonton. This contest created a great deal of interest in certain quarters as the Stetser-Gillis fight for recorder. Simonton's majority was 302. Senator Robertson's attitude toward certain measures introduced in the last session of the State Legislature, particularly of the proposed city charter, which his enemies claimed was defeated because of amendments offered by him, was one of the issues of the campaign. Last week the wet and dry question was injected into the fight in this district, when Dr. E. C. Pretyma, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and Rev. Carlisle L. Hubbard, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, solicited votes for Robertson. The total vote polled was 16,000, which is considered unusually large for a primary election.

The following candidates for the various county offices were successful at Saturday's primary election:

Deceased had been in Middletown for many years and leaves a husband and four grown children to mourn her death.

Funeral services were held at her late home on East Lake street Friday afternoon, and interment was in Dale's cemetery.

New Home Economics Supervisor

Heim, State Director of Vocational Education the State Board of Education has appointed Miss Elizabeth Amory, State Supervisor of Home Economics to succeed Miss Jennie Bear, who recently resigned to accept a position in Rhode Island. This appointment is of special interest to every high school in the state. Miss Amory has had about 15 years experience in this line of work and for the past four years has been on the faculty of the University of Washington, at Seattle, supervising and teaching in the Teacher Training Department.

Won Blue Ribbons

FOREST CHURCH NOTES

PRESBYTERIAN

Sunday, September 17th, 1922. 10.30 A. M. Morning service. Sermon by the pastor.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School. 7.30 P. M. Evening service. Sermon by the pastor.

Mid-week service Wednesday at 7.30 P. M.

Boy Scout meeting Friday at 7.00 P. M.

Each one of the above services is planned and prepared with a distinct aim and purpose in view. The preaching services combine worship, prayer and praise and an earnest attempt to understand and explain a portion of God's word with an application to the modern problems of every day life.

The Sunday School is devoted primarily to study of the word of God as it is contained in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. The student here becomes acquainted with the origin, meaning, duty, privilege and chief end of life; and is taught to govern himself accordingly. The teachers are painstaking, conscientious and God-fearing.

The mid-week service aims to replenish the depleted energy and power, chiefly through the means of prayer. We are at present making an informal study of the Acts of the Apostles. We are becoming acquainted with the manner in which the Apostles received power from on high.

The Boy Scout meeting seeks to develop those qualities in the boy which will make him grow up into an adult useful citizen; an honour to his country and his God. His oath of membership takes into account his relation to his God, his fellow man, to himself. The Boy Scout laws require him to practice those qualities without which no boy can ever become a true man.

These services are for the good of the community. They are for you. Surely you can find something in the church program which will be helpful to you. If you are not a Christian in a Christian country, you can hardly claim to be a good citizen. The church will help you to become a Christian. Give it a fair and honest trial.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, September 17th, 1922. The 14th Sunday after Trinity.

Services: 10.30 A. M. Morning prayer, litany and sermon.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School. 7.30 P. M. Evening prayer and address.

Thursday, September 21st. St. Matthew, Evangelist. St. Matthew 13:9. "And he arose and followed him." The example of St. Matthew teaches us to prefer the service of God to all earthly gain and advantage. He was a tax-gatherer, "sitting at the receipt of custom;" but when Jesus called him he left his employment at a word, giving up with all his prospects of future wealth and henceforth followed the Lord. He wrote the Gospel that bears his name, and preached in Judea for about eight years; after which he went into Parthia and Ethiopia, and was probably martyred there, though the manner of his death has not been recorded.

Friday and Saturday, September 22d and 23d are Ember Days, see prayer book, page 40.

The world draws a horizontal line of division, or rather two lines, that mark off humanity into three sections: the upper, middle and lower classes. Christ draws a vertical line throughout the whole scale, dividing society into two parts, those on the right and those on the left—good and bad, the goats and the sheep.

Do not be anxious about tomorrow. Do today's duty, fight today's temptation, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things which you cannot see, and could not understand if you saw them. Have faith in God and in Jesus Christ. Our Saviour who through the Holy Spirit will guide us into all truth.

Some where, some way, some time, I'll turn aside and stop and pray. The light of God's church the way. Of righteousness to men.

A hearty welcome awaits you at St. Anne's Church. Come bring your friends with you!

Bethesda Church Notes

10.30 A. M. Morning worship and sermon by the pastor, "God's Disappointment from His Vineyard."

7.30 P. M. Dr. E. W. Caswell will be the speaker.

Prayer and Praise Service Wednesday night, September 20th, at 7.30 P. M. You will find a cordial welcome at the "Glad Hand Church."

A congregational meeting will be held in the Sunday School room of the church on Wednesday night, Sept. 20, at 8 o'clock for the purpose of electing a board of Trustees. All persons over 21 years of age are eligible to vote in this election.

Crop Reports Good

With the volume of shipments of the apple crop for the year so far over the Delaware roads trains showing far in advance of last year, the peach and pear crops far ahead and the Kiefer pears just to come, the tomato crop shipments just starting, and the late white and sweet potato shipments promising to be large, indications for a bumper crop all the way to the Delaware Peninsula are excellent.

The total shipments of apples Saturday over the Delaware road were 1720 baskets, and the total to date 1,056,994 baskets, as compared with a total shipment of the same day a year ago of 71,290 baskets. It is announced that the early crop is about through and the late crop, not yet come.

Card of Thanks

Will Stand For Congressman

DOVER, SEPT. 8.—Former Judge William H. Boyce has accepted the Democratic nomination for Representative in Congress.

Every Evening's correspondent called on Judge Boyce today in relation to the nomination, and the latter, with manifest reluctance, but with candor, authorized the correspondent to make the following statement:

"My strong personal inclinations are and have been against re-entering the public service, and because of such feeling I regret my nomination for Congress. If I felt wholly free to consult my personal preferences, I would be constrained to decline the nomination, but I realize my obligation to the public at all times, and after most serious reflection, a sense of duty impels me to accept the nomination so generously tendered me."

U. OF D. WILL OPEN SEPT. 22D

University of Delaware will open for the new college year on Friday of next week with prospects of a large freshman class. On September 19 and 20, freshmen examinations will be held for those who did not take them in June. A certificate of graduation from any four year high school in the state automatically admits a boy or girl to the university, but examinations are required of students entering in English and Modern Language for the purpose of classification. Reexaminations for upper classmen will be held Sept. 18, 19 and 20. Freshmen and Sophomores will register on Sept. 21, and Seniors and Juniors on Sept. 22. There are always some students to enter on the last day who were not expected and generally a few others who have been counted on change their minds at the last minute. For these reasons Prof. Geo. E. Dutton, chairman of the Entrance Committee, is unable to give definite figures at this time relative to the new class. Prof. Dutton, however, feels that the new class will be larger than last year and will probably exceed 100. All vacancies in the faculty have been filled and the university authorities are looking for a banner year.

Fillingame—Bishop Wedding

Bishop, near Warwick, Md., was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, September 6, at two o'clock, when her youngest daughter, Nellie Marie, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Francis Fillingame, of Elkton, Md. Dickinson, of Chesapeake City, Md., was maid of honor, and wore a green French organdie, with hat to match, and carried pink roses. Mr. Alday C. Bishop, of Wilmington, brother of the bride, acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Agnes E. Merritt, pianist, and Mr. George H. Andrews, of Newark, N. J., violinist.

A reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Fillingame left for a trip south, and on their return will reside in Elkton.

Dr. Lorenz Recommends Corsets

Dr. Adolf Lorenz appeared as an advocate of corsets for women during his health Department clinic recently said the New York Tribune.

"Every woman should wear a corset," said the famous surgeon. "Possibly the young girl should be excepted. The corset not only braces vital organs that need bracing, but is a preventive of spinal troubles."

"I do not say that women should squeeze their waists as once they did. I am referring to corsets of today, designed on common sense lines. The important thing is that the corset should fit in every instance be a perfect fit."

"I frequently prescribe corsets modeled after casts made of the patients under my observation. I agree with Health Commissioner Cowland in his observation that a corset gives to a woman the sense of being completely dressed and thus contributes to her piece of mind, which is beneficial."

Read the corset advertisement of Mrs. A. S. Peterson in another column of The Transcript.

CHILDREN'S TRANSPORTATION

The State Board of Education at its last meeting passed a resolution authorizing the State Department of Public Instruction to handle the transportation problem this year on the same basis as last year, namely, to take care of contract transportation for the year and to pay for private transportation as long as the funds available permit, on the following basis:

Five cents (5c) per mile will be allowed for each child in the 6th grade or below, who lives more than 2 miles from his school, or, in the 7th grade or above and who lives more than 3 miles from the nearest school of proper grade. (Nearest school means school nearest to his home providing his proper grade); provided, that for two children in the same family, one and only one times the allowance will be made; and provided, that for three or more children in a family, twice the allowance for a single child will be made; and further provided, that not more than 40c per day shall be allowed for any one child. (Transportation allowed only for the distance in excess of two or three miles, as the case may be. For example: A child above the 6th grade living five miles from school should receive 2 1/2 c a day.)

Pupils desiring private transportation must make application therefore on forms provided by the State Department. These forms can be secured either from the teacher or by direct application to O. J. Adams, Business Manager, Dover, Del.

The bill for transportation must be rendered monthly, not later than the 15th day of the month following, giving the number of days each child is carried, which bill must be certified to, as to the number of days attended, by the principal or teacher of the school the child has attended. Bill forms may be likewise secured from the teacher or the State Department.

Secretary State Board of Education.

OLD UNION SERVICES

The anniversary services at Old Union last Sunday were characterized by fine weather and the usual large crowds. The Rev. Dr. S. N. Pichard was the morning preacher. His discourse was eloquently presented and produced a marked effect upon his hearers. In the interim the grove was filled with visitors and friends, who spread their rich provisions for the inner man, and the feasts were sumptuously enjoyed. After this, the pastor, the Rev. George P. Jones, gathered the congregation more in the temple and an old-fashioned experience meeting was enjoyed by all. A visiting quartette rendered a beautiful selection.

The afternoon preacher, who had been announced, failed to arrive, and the Rev. E. H. Derrickson, of Odessa, and the pastor in charge, substituted in his place thereby closing a full day of worship in this historic church. The collections amounted to about $150. In the morning there was an election of trustees to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of William B. Weldon and Sherbourne A. Collins. The new members are J. Clarence Hutchison and W. A. Scott.

The first church was erected on the site of the present one about 140 years ago. The present structure, which is of brick construction, was built in 1847. Recently the interior was beautified by the artistic work of William Naylor, who made a decided change generally in its appearance.

MRS. HARDING STILL IMPROVING

Contemplated Operation Has Been Deferred

PHYSICIANS ENCOURAGED

Optimism is Exhibited By Personal Friends—Prayers For Recovery
Offered In All Washington Churches.

Washington.—Improvement in the condition of Mrs. Harding, which began Sunday, continues, and the physicians in attendance deferred the operation which has been under consideration.

An official bulletin issued shortly after 10 o'clock said the wife of the President had spent a less restless night, that complications were subsiding and that generally her condition, which became critical late last week, was improved. It also announced the decision to defer an operation. The bulletin was supplemented by statements made by visitors to the White House to Secretary Wallace, who called shortly after 8 o'clock, saying that Mrs. Harding had spent a fairly restful night. Secretary Weeks, who called later, said he had been informed that the night had been the best the patient had had since her condition became alarming. President Harding was reported to be greatly encouraged by the seeming improvement in his wife's condition.

An air of optimism pervaded the White House, those in intimate touch with the patient appearing to be in better spirits over her condition than at any time during the past three days.

Refreshed somewhat by a night's sleep the President continued to keep in constant touch with his wife's bedside and with the attending physicians. The presence at the White House of the entire consulting staff, made complete by the arrival here of Dr. Charles Mayo, specialist from Rochester, Minn., seemed to strengthen the hope that Mrs. Harding would successfully pass through the present crisis.

An endless stream of close friends of the President and Mrs. Harding visited the White House during the day. The President personally met with most of them and was reported to be bearing up well under strain. Messages of sympathy all expressing the hope that Mrs. Harding would be restored to health continued to arrive, many of them from leaders in Government and private affairs in other countries.

Brigadier-General Sawyer, the family physician, was understood to have informed some of the President's close friends that Mrs. Harding was "brighter and stronger, and there is a chance this attack might clear up as the previous attacks." The impression gathered from Dr. Sawyer, these friends said, was that her chances "rather favored recovery."

The relief felt by the President at the turn for the better was shown shortly before noon when he left the Executive Mansion for a walk about the White House grounds. It was the first time that he had left the Executive Mansion since last Friday, except for a brief visit Saturday to his office adjoining the White House.

William C. Redfield, of New York, Secretary of Commerce in the Cabinet of President Wilson, called at the White House to express his hopes for the recovery of the patient and to extend his sympathy to the President.

Word was received in Washington that a call had been sent out from Boston by the United Society of Christian Endeavor on behalf of its alumni department, urging that prayer be offered throughout the nation for the recovery of Mrs. Harding.

The President is a member of the alumni department of the Society, representatives of which here estimated that the call would be obeyed by nearly 20,000,000 Americans. Commissioners of the District of Columbia also issued a proclamation calling upon the people of Washington to join in prayer.

Prayer for the speedy recovery of Mrs. Harding was offered in the House by Rev. Shera Montgomery, the chaplain, who asked Divine blessing and strength for the President in his hour of sorrow.

"Press not the cup of death to their lips," the chaplain prayed.

COTTON TRADE DECREASES.

is Down 2,000,000 Pounds From Pre-War Figure.

Washington.—The cotton trade of the world has decreased one-third, or approximately 2,000,000,000 pounds, from the figure which it had reached before the war, according to a survey issued by the Commerce Department. The combined importation of raw cotton by the 12 principal cotton importing countries of the world in 1921, the survey stated, was 4,412,000,000 pounds, as compared with a total of 6,451,000,000 pounds in 1913, while the combined exports of the six principal cotton-producing countries in 1921 aggregated 4,697,000,000 pounds, as against 6,748,000,000 pounds in 1913.

The infant was dead, while the mother and daughter were taken to a hospital, where the mother died. Mrs. Lavender left a note to her husband saying that she had been sick for two years. "I am taking my two children with me," she wrote, "as I could not think of leaving them behind me. Whatever luck my spirit can bring you will be yours. God bless you."

SMYRNA EVACUATED TURKS IN CONTROL

Confusion Resigns in City—
Typhus and Plague

GREEL TROOPS MUTINOUS

Constantinople Rejoices—Greek Quarter Invaded; Churches Assailed—Capital Next Objective.

Constantinople.—One hundred thousand Greek troops have evacuated Smyrna, and a Turkish civil administration has been established there. The Greeks have lost the battle around Smyrna, and the Greek administration ceased in Ionia Saturday night. All the members of the High Commission headed by M. Stergiadis are on board the British battleship Iron Duke. The Greek army has been hopelessly beaten.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist leader, has established headquarters in Kassaaba. He has invited the Allied and American consuls to proceed there with the purpose of arranging the taking over of the city with a minimum of disorder. The meeting was fixed for 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Kassaaba.

Hostilities ceased Sunday. Nazilli, Aiden and other towns were burned. The greatest confusion reigns in Smyrna. A wireless dispatch broadcast by the Ankara Government announced to all the complete annihilation of the Greek Army. Greek headquarters have been transferred to Chios, opposite the Island of Mytilene. The Greek troops are being rapidly evacuated by vessels.

The Allies have published a proclamation in Smyrna urging the population to maintain order. It promised that the Allies will secure guarantees for the protection of the minorities. The Allied assurances, however, have not had any effect on the terrorized population. The Greek patriarch telegraphed the Archbishop of Canterbury in London and Premier Lloyd George asking them to use their good offices in favor of the Christians in Anatolia.

The Greek losses, as far as it has been possible to ascertain them up to the present time, are total, except for the Third Army Corps, which is believed to be withdrawing from Brusa to Panderma with all its material.

A wireless dispatch from one of the Allied warships at Mudania says the Turks have taken Ghemlek and Brusa. Ten thousand refugees are massed in Mudania. It is not known where they will go. Constantinople is being overcrowded.

History is said never to have recorded so complete a disaster as that which the Greeks have met with. It is asserted that Austria's defeat in the Caporetto during the World War is nothing compared with the debacle of the Greeks.

JUDGE FINES HIS OWN SON.

Latter Was Bailiff In Court—Failed To Appear.

Washington.—Roman justice was meted out when Glenn Hardison, Police Court bailiff, did not report for duty until 1:30 P. M. Judge Robert Hardison, his father, summoned him to the bar to explain his tardiness. The bailiff testified that he had accompanied some friends from Kentucky on a sight-seeing tour. His father thereupon fined him $5 for contempt of court because of his absence without leave. Bailiff Hardison announced he would employ counsel and appeal from Judge Hardison's decision.

THE ANTHRACITE STRIKE OFF

Ratify Wage Agreement Entered Into With Operators

WORK RESUMED MONDAY

Idle Five Months—New Scale Will Continue In Effect Until August 31 Next Year.

Wilkes-Barre.—The anthracite wage agreement, sending the miners back to work at once after more than five months of idleness, was ratified by the tripartite convention of the hard coal diggers.

Under the agreement 155,000 mine workers return to work at the rate of wages they received when they suspended mining on March 31. The new contract will be in effect until August 31, next year, when a new arrangement is to be negotiated "in the light" of a report to be made by a commission which both sides recommend be created by Congress to investigate every phase of the anthracite industry.

The peace pact was ratified by a five voice vote. Immediately after the ratification a motion was unanimously adopted lifting the suspension at once and the men will be permitted to return to work immediately. As soon as the convention adjourned leaders of the United Mine Workers immediately made preparations to have the formal contract signed by both sides at Scranton on Monday.

When the men return to work the suspension will have lasted 163 days, one day less than the great strike of 1902, which continued from May 12 to October 22, inclusive. The suspension, which was never officially designated as a strike by the union, was free from serious disorders. None of the coal companies made any attempt to mine coal, but employed men to keep the mines free from water and gas.

It is expected that full production will not be obtained for several weeks. Some of the mines are not in the best condition and it is probable a shortage of labor will be experienced at the start in some sections. Due largely to the fact that many men left the regions to seek work in other places.

The end came after a long day of oratory, in which those for or against the peace pact put forth their best speakers. International President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, who has been devoting all his time to the anthracite situation since the Cleveland settlement in the bituminous coal fields, made the concluding speech in favor of ratification. He appeared to be laboring under great emotion as he began to speak and soon had the delegates cheering him.

When he concluded he almost collapsed from physical exhaustion and the long strain of peace negotiations. West and East.

In his speech the miners' chief gave a comprehensive review of the conditions that confronted the union in the fight to retain present wage scales.

The determined contest of the union in rejecting arbitration in all forms was also reviewed. Mr. Lewis declared that as a future policy of the union no form of arbitration would be accepted. With tears in his eyes the labor chieftain urged the convention to ratify the agreement, not because he said so, but because it was the best that they could do for themselves and for their families.

HANGING IS FIRST IN YEARS.

Ira Pavay Is Executed In Iowa For Murder.

Fort Madison, Iowa.—Ira Pavay was hanged for the murder of Claude Letner, the first hanging in Iowa in 12 years.

Pavay sauntered to the gallows smoking a cigarette and addressing those around him with the banter he has kept up since his imprisonment. He stood on the platform with a smile and as the hanging shroud was being fitted he called: "So long, everybody. Warden, tell my mother good-bye."

Pavay's mother and sisters previously had raced 200 miles to the prison. They reached it in time to be with Pavay for two hours.

Beside Burial Garments.

Yreka, Cal.—George Baines, an elderly miner, was found alone in his back near Sawyer's Bar with one wrist slashed, lying alongside a home-made coffin lined with flour sacks. Nearby were a will, burial garments and an empty poison bottle. The grave, evidently dug with his own pick and shovel, was outside the back.

DAIRY FACTS

USE MORE REGISTERED SIRES

Notable Progress Is Reported In Movement to Replace Scrub Bulls
With Purebreds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is every reason to believe that the replacement of scrub and grade sires by purebreds is on the increase. Reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture from county agents in various parts of the country show that the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement is having a noticeable effect. A recent statement by M. G. Lewis, county agent of Rockbridge county, Va., is typical of a large number.

"The purebred bull movement," says Mr. Lewis, "is progressing rapidly. Since January 1, 16 farmers have disposed of grade or scrub bulls and are using registered bulls instead. On the other hand, there are no less than 50 men in the county who still persist in holding out against the progress and development of the live stock interests of the county by keeping inferior grade or scrub bulls. I have a list of 56 owners of such bulls. Some of these men have grades that are fairly good individuals, while others have scrubs that are the worst kind of a disgrace to the community and to the county.

"The cost of a good registered bull is so small now that it is a mystery why any farmer will keep anything else. Many records have been kept during the last few years to prove out the actual value of a purebred bull in dollars and cents."

Some of these actual figures were obtained recently by the Department of Agriculture through an inquiry sent out to more than 500 farmers throughout the United States. These men gave it as their opinion that in all kinds of farm stock purebreds have an earning power more than 40 per cent better than common stock. It is noteworthy that in the case of dairy cattle, whose productive power can be easily measured, purebreds were considered to be 47.8 per cent better than common cows. The lowest percentage given for any kind of stock was 36.8 per cent.

FLIES DECREASE MILK YIELD

Spraying Furnishes Means of Relieving Cow For Time and Saves
Temper of Milker.

The irritation of cows caused by flies not only lessens the milk produced, but, due to the restlessness of the cows, is a frequent cause of inefficient milking.

The fly spray furnishes a means of relieving the cow for a time at least and of saving the temper of the milkers. The following fly repellent mixture is recommended:

Four and one-half quarts of coal tar dip, 4½ quarts of fish oil, 3 quarts of whale oil, 1½ quarts of oil of tar and ½ ounce of oil of pennyroyal. Dissolve 3 pounds of laundry soap in water, add the ingredients of the spray and bring the whole up to 30 gallons with lukewarm water.

This quantity will spray 40 cows twice a day for 10 days. The spray should be applied in the morning after milking and in the afternoon when the cows are in the barn for silage or green feed.

RELIABLE SOURCE OF PROFIT

Dairy Cow Is More Dependable Than Beef Steer Because Her Products Are Steady.

The dairy cow is a more dependable source of profit than the beef steer, because her products are but slightly affected by market fluctuations and because she is a continuous source of revenue, for the cream or milk checks come in at frequent intervals. Then, too, there is an increasing demand for dairy products and for grade and purebred dairy cattle.

Most Profitable Cow.

One good cow is more profitable than several poor ones.

Sterilize Milk Utensils.

For the proper sterilization of dairy utensils an abundance of steam or hot water is needed. Immerse them in boiling water for two minutes, or put them in a tight closet and thoroughly sterilize with steam for thirty minutes.

Way to Improve Dairy.

Replacing the low-producing cows with better ones and later with purebreds is only one of the ways in which a dairy improvement association helps a community.

Milk Without Noise.

Milk quietly, quickly, cleanly and thoroughly. Cows do not like unnecessary noise or delay. Commence milking at exactly the same hour every morning and evening, and milk the cows in the same order.

Prepare for Next Winter.

Fix up the barn and milk house, putting the building in good shape for the convenient handling of cows next winter. Build a manure shed if you haven't one. Place your dairy herd on advanced registry test.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Another Addition to Horrors of War

WASHINGTON.—Typewriting in an airplane flying among the clouds with radio machinery duplicating the letters at a ground station miles away and reeling the message off in print, is a development announced by the Navy department as giving to naval aircraft "a means of communication in advance of radio telegraph and telephone systems now in current use."

Successes already attained by experts working in conjunction with the navy, the department asserted, assures the practicability of the scheme. That such a development will be of incalculable value to all forms of aviation, commercial and military, follows.

Truthful Information for the Motorist

THE National Park to Park Highway association plans to educate not only the matured mind, but the school children of the nation to the many advantages of the western portion of the United States.

There is much untruth in booster publications. Opportunities are colored, scenic attractions are commercialized and thereby cheapened. Recreative places are thought of only in the sense of the dollar, geology has been belittled with fictitious and misleading localized names and descriptions, botany is unknown by natives and plants as well as trees have received local names.

The National Park to Park highway connects with one wonderful highway all of the national parks in the Rocky mountains and on the Pacific coast. The plans being formed in the general office of the association by Gus Holmes, the managing secretary, are a set of publications covering separately the following subjects:

Scenic attractions, recreative places of interest, such as forests, lakes and streams, free to the public.

Historical places of interest; many of these attractions are found directly on or as side trips from each community center.

A complete publication on formation and geology over the entire 6,500 miles.

An absolutely reliable publication on trees and plants found growing along the highway or on side trips.

In other words, the National Park inevitably on the heels of the work being done by the navy, it is predicted. The device has been named the "teletype." It resembles the commercial typewriter, in that a keyboard having the letters of the alphabet and other symbols on it is arranged for hand operation.

Each key is connected to the radio installation in the plane and when a letter is struck, a radio impulse is flashed from the antenna on the plane to the receiving stations below, where the letter is reproduced on paper.

A reversal of the operation, so that the plane can receive messages from ground stations, is said to be only a matter of detail. The new system, it is declared, also possesses the advantage of eliminating much of the chance of error in transmission, receiving and sending, experienced in the telephone and telegraph devices.

"This," the statement said, "will be a marked step in advance in that it will allow explicit directions to scouting and combat planes in flight by the commander in chief of the fleet and will enable scouts and other types of planes to convey accurate and detailed information to the high command."

THE BIG MUSKEG

By

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

He seemed to tremble at her words. He turned fiercely upon her. "To Scotland!" he shouted. "I'm done with this country. A man's thoughts turn in his old age to his homeland. To Aberdeen!"

Molly was awed by the old man's fanatical enthusiasm. "When shall we go?" she asked.

"This autumn, lass—before the snows fall. But—" he clutched her by the arm—"ye'll say nought about it?"

"But you must arrange with the company for a new factor, and, if he isn't trained—"

His clutch became convulsive. "Not a word!" he cried fiercely. "Haven't I done well by the company? It won't be the sufferer. If they thought I was going away they'd—not a word, lass! Promise me! Molly, lass, ye winna go back on me now?"

"No, I won't go back on you," she answered.

But she did not like the idea of stealing away, although the company would suffer little. And then there would be the forfeiture of his pension. But she dared not bring up that subject in view of his evident obsession.

After a while they began to make preparations. They spoke of the journey as being weeks, instead of months away. Then came a night when the factor tapped at Molly's door. She dressed quickly and went out of her room, to see the whole skyline ablaze. Clouds of smoke were whirling down on them. Suddenly a rig with two horses came dashing across the portage and drew up at the door.

Molly recognized Lee Chambers and Hackett, and turned and faced them, though her heart was beating with fear.

"We've come for you, Miss McDonald," shouted Lee Chambers. "The fire's across the muskeg, and there won't be anything left of this store in twenty minutes. Come along!"

He shouted and gesticulated wildly, and seemed hardly master of himself. McDonald started and looked out through the smoke clouds. But as they approached the girl she drew herself away.

"It's not true!" she cried. "The fire's on the other side. Why should you come for us?"

"I tell you you'll be burned to a cinder inside of fifteen minutes!" yelled Chambers. "We've got no time to waste. We're going to drive you out of danger. Come along!"

"I won't come!" cried Molly. "Don't go with them, father. He's not speaking the truth! Look at his face!"

Hackett pushed Chambers out of his way and strode up to the door. "I guess that's true enough, what you say, Miss McDonald," he said. "The fire ain't this side—but Wil Carruthers is dying. They pulled him out of his shack. He's in a bad way. Maybe he'll live till morning. He's calling for you."

"Will—Will burned?" gasped Molly, looking at him with eyes of horror.

"It's gospel truth," cried Chambers. "He can't rest till you go to him."

"Then why did you tell us an untruth?" asked the girl, searching his face as if to read to the bottom of his soul.

"Because we wanted to break it gently," shouted Hackett. He seized her by the arm. "We haven't no time to waste!" he shouted. "He may die any minute while we're talking here."

"He didn't send you," cried Molly with sudden conviction. "Why should he have sent you? We won't go! You're lying! Let me go!"

She pushed her father back into the store and tried to bolt the door in their faces, but they set their shoulders against it and broke through. Molly ran to her room; they were there almost as soon as she. She screamed. She heard McDonald's feeble shout cut off as Chambers grasped him by the throat. And then she was struggling madly in Hackett's arms.

"Curse you!" she shouted, with a string of vile oaths, seizing her by the hair and dashing his fist into her face.

She fought back like a tigress, broke from him, and snatching up the water-pitcher, smashed it across his head, cutting his face with the fragments of porcelain. He grasped her by the throat. She clung to the bed, the table, to the door, screaming the while until his fingers tightened on her throat and the room swam blackly around her.

She was faintly conscious of a gag thrust into her mouth, of being carried, struggling, out of the store, of being lifted into the rig. Then she revived to find herself huddled upon the floor, her father bending over her with his wrists tied, and mumbling in her ear. The engineer, seated in front of them, was driving furiously along the trail southward. Hackett, with one leg thrust out on either side of the vehicle, was wiping the blood from his face.

Desperate as she was, Molly would have tried to leap from the rig but for her father. She heard him continue mumbling; and at length the meaning of his words reached her brain, and the horror of them numbed her and repressed all thought of fighting.

"It'll be all right, my lass," the old man was muttering. "They won't hurt you no more. They're taking us to Tom Bowyer. I reckon. He's bested us. We'll have to give in. We'll make the most of it."

The old man shook with fear, but he laid his hand caressingly upon her head. And afterward Molly recalled that gesture, and remembered that it was his right one.

At the time she thought nothing. She lay back with her head against the seat, resolved to husband her strength for a more desperate struggle later, if need be. Her dress was rent, her hair fell to her waist. Rain had begun to fall; the horses, lashed incessantly, tore madly through the darkness, and the rig swayed dangerously from side to side.

Molly's thoughts ran on as fiercely. They were taking her to Bowyer, then! But Bowyer was at Cold Junction, and surely he could not harm her there!

And he was taking her father. She must remain at his side and protect him. She sat passively upon the floor, hearing the frenzied babbling of the old man, and soothing him with one hand stretched out upon his.

But this was not the way to Cold Junction. This led toward Chain of Lakes, where several fishing clubs had purchased ground and water rights and set up camps. Her heart sank. She caught at Hackett's arm.

"Where are you taking us?" she pleaded. "Won't you let us go back? I'll say nothing if you let us go—I'll say nothing!"

Hackett grinned at her and tried to put his arm about her. She struck out at him, and with an oath, he pushed her back violently into the bottom of the rig.

She gathered all her courage to wait. And the waiting was not long. The upland was surrounded, and a lake came into sight, a neck of land, and the dark outlines of camp buildings upon it. A light shined in a window. Chambers pulled up the horses.

He leaped to the ground and, catching McDonald by the arm, pulled him roughly out of the vehicle. He hammered fiercely upon the door, which opened. Tom Bowyer appeared on the threshold. The factor began to tremble. Bowyer pulled him unceremoniously inside.

"Bring her in!" he yelled to Hackett. The outlaw caught Molly by the waist and swung her to the ground. She tried to break from him, but Bowyer, having thrust McDonald inside, snatched her from Hackett's grasp and, picking her up bodily, carried her into the lighted room.

Bowyer deposited the girl on the divan, went out and pushed McDonald in after her. Outside Molly heard a fierce altercation in progress—Bowyer's threatening tones, Hackett's sullen answers and Lee Chambers' querulous whine.

Presently the two men went out and Molly heard the horses being led away. She tried to adjust her torn dress, to fasten up her hair. Bowyer came back.

"Now we'll have a few words to gether," he said, leaning at Molly.

CHAPTER XIII.

Wilton carried the dead man into his room and laid the body on the bed. His face was set like flint. In this he traced the work of Bowyer; but the tool, Lee Chambers, was the object of his immediate vengeance.

Before anything else he must discover the motive of the burglary.

He opened the safe, which he had shut, and went through the papers very deliberately. He was astonished to find that everything appeared intact and just as he had left it.

Wilton could not understand it. He tried to figure it out. He had already come to the conclusion that the fire had been started with the purpose of drawing himself and those in the vicinity away from the office, while the burglary was being committed. But why had it failed? And what had Chambers been after?

He must have known that there was no money in the safe. The men's pay came up monthly by special messenger.

At the sight of the dead man on the bed Andersen swore softly.

"He must have been with those two liquor peddlers," said Andersen. "I guess they set the fire, all right."

"I guess they did," said Wilton. "And I want you to go on to the next camp and telephone in to Clayton and get the police up here right away."

"I do it, Mr. Carruthers," said Andersen. "You see, sir, just as soon as the fire began I seen that gasoline on the engine sheds. And I'd heard the men talking, because I picked up a little of their language. I knew there was trouble coming, and I phoned Mr. Quinn. He said he'd get an engine

"They can't open the safe," said Wilton. "At least, there's only one man can, and he's been at it already. No, never mind what I mean! I don't want bloodshed. I'll open it and show it to them." He turned to one of the engineers. "Take four men with you and hurry to the store and see that no harm comes to Miss McDonald and her father," he ordered. "And take this," he added, picking the revolver out of the drawer and handing it to him.

"You'd better come too, Mr. Carruthers," the man suggested.

"No, I'll stay here," said Wilton. "Hurry!"

The engineer picked four men and they hurried down the road. Andersen and two others remained with Wilton. Hardly had the party left when the mob came streaming out of the bunkhouses toward the office, shouting and yelling.

Seeing the four men standing in the doorway, however, they hesitated to rush them, probably in the belief that they were armed, and stood off, cursing them.

"Speak up!" shouted Wilton. "What is it you men want?"

The shouts died away to a muttering. A spokesman stepped forward. "We want the money in the safe, and we'll have it!" he shouted. "We all know you set the fire because the line's busted, and you've got the safe chock-full of money. You've worked us like dogs all summer, and now you're going to lay us off because the company's busted. You'd better hand it over!"

Evidently somebody had been telling the men that tale.

"There's no money in the safe," he answered. "Send a deputation of three men and you can examine it."

The Hunkies, who for the most part understood him very well, looked at one another uncertainly. They were as docile as lambs without leadership. But they had a leader; the outlaw Tongway stepped forward out of the crowd.

"Come along, boys, he's fooling you!" he yelled. "Smash his head for him! Give them what's coming to them!"

But he slunk back into their midst as the yelling mob rushed forward. Wilton noticed that he was fingering a revolver in his coat pocket. He waited till the mob was close upon the shack. He had calculated that an instant's hesitation would follow, seized it and sprang into their midst, striking out right and left and felling a drunken laborer at every blow. As Tongway rumbled desperately with the trigger of the weapon in his pocket, Wilton dealt him a smashing blow that knocked him senseless. He stooped, took the revolver and turned and faced his assailants.

"Now, men," he said crisply. "I've told you that you shall examine the safe, and I'll keep my word. Three of you enter. The rest will wait outside."

After a pause three of the workmen came forward. Wilton opened the safe and took them inside the shack, opened the safe door and took out the contents, package by package.

"Satisfied there's no money?" he asked.

"I guess that's so," admitted the leader of the men, reluctantly.

"Then get out," said Wilton, driving them toward the door.

The three rejoined their companions and, with sullen mutterings, the workmen lurched away aimlessly, and totally unable to unite on any further plan for aggression now that their leader was gone. Andersen and one of the engineers picked up Tongway and brought him into the shack. The man was still unconscious. However, he showed signs of coming to shortly.

"Julius is dead," said Wilton quietly.

"Julius dead?" shouted Andersen.

"Murdered. It was Lee Chambers. He must have been hanging round the camp. He got into the safe, too, but was scared away before he took anything. Come inside."

At the sight of the dead man on the bed Andersen swore softly.

"He must have been with those two liquor peddlers," said Andersen. "I guess they set the fire, all right."

"I guess they did," said Wilton. "And I want you to go on to the next camp and telephone in to Clayton and get the police up here right away."

"I do it, Mr. Carruthers," said Andersen. "You see, sir, just as soon as the fire began I seen that gasoline on the engine sheds. And I'd heard the men talking, because I picked up a little of their language. I knew there was trouble coming, and I phoned Mr. Quinn. He said he'd get an engine and come right up with some of his men."

"Well done!" said Wilton. "We'll have this man for them, at any rate."

Tongway stirred, muttered and suddenly sat up on the floor, looking at his captors in bewilderment. Wilton quietly took the revolver out of his pocket and walked toward him.

"I'm going to ask you a few questions, Tongway," he remarked in a casual tone. "You'll find it to your advantage to answer them. Who sent you here?"

Tongway broke into a short laugh. "You 'tink dey tell that to me?" he sneered. "Jim Hackett don't tell me nothings. He say you got de job—you do it!"

"You came with Hackett; but what was the game? You were told to sell liquor round the camp and make the workmen drunk and discontented. I guess you have an idea whom you were working for, besides Jim Hackett, eh, Tongway?"

"Mebbe I do," muttered the outlaw. "I guess you shoot me unless I say Mr. Bowyer, eh?"

The party was effective. "You came here with Hackett and Lee Chambers to fire the camp," said Wilton. "Lee Chambers' job was to steal papers from the safe while we were fighting the fire. You were going to meet somewhere afterward. Where was it?"

The man burst into scornful laughter. "You don't bluff me," he jeered.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 17

THE MESSAGE OF MALACHI

LESSON TEXT—Mal. 3:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of Hosts—Mal. 3:7.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—II Kings 17:23; Isa. 6: Esak. 21-7; Acts 20-25; II Cor. 8:3-9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Promise of the Savior's Coming.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Offerings That Please God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We Should Give to God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the Bible Teaches About Giving.

The subject of today's lesson is broader than the text, especially the verses printed. The best way to teach this lesson is to give a survey of the entire book.

Malachi was perhaps contemporary with Nehemiah; probably sustained the same relation to Nehemiah that Hagai and Zechariah did to Zerubbabel. After the completion of the walls of Jerusalem Nehemiah seems to have been called back to the Persian court, but returned to Jerusalem after a few years. Though outwardly the lives of the people were correct, the prophet pointed out the sins of a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages and a failure to pay tithes.

I. Israel's Base Ingratitude (1:1-5). God approached them with the tender affirmation "I have loved you." It was the prophet's burden to declare this fact unto them (v. 1). So formal and worldly were the people that they failed to see God's hand upon them. The attitude of Israel to God is shown in the skeptical insinuation "Wherein hast Thou loved us?" The prophet answers this by showing God's choice of Jacob and His passing by Esau; His destruction of Edom and saving Israel.

II. God's Severe Indictment (1:6-2:17).

1. Against the Priests (1:6-2, 9). They were guilty (1) of profanity (1:6). Their profanity was in despising the name of God. To fail to honor God is to be profane. To use His name in any ungodly way is to be thus guilty. (2) Sacrilege (vv. 7, 8). Their sacrilegious act was in offering polluted bread and blemished sacrifices. To bring such offerings to an earthly ruler would be a gross insult. Gifts to be acceptable with God must be genuine; must cost something. We should give to God our best. There is no intellect too brilliant to offer in the Lord's service. The young should not esteem their lives wasted who offer them on the altar of missionary sacrifice. (3) Greed (1:10). They were not willing to open the doors of God's house without pay. Our service should be out of a heart of love for God, not for profit. This was a vital application to ministers and evangelists today. To enter Christian service because of worldly gain is of this type. (4) Weariness (1:12, 13). Because of lack of love the routine of duty became irksome. (5) Not teaching the law to the people (2:1-5). Those set apart to teach God's law to the people have a great responsibility and God will most surely demand an accounting.

2. Against the People (2:10-17; 3:7-15). (1) For ungodly marriages (2:11, 12). God's purpose in the prohibition of mixed marriages was that He might raise up holy seed (v. 15). The marriage of the believer with the unbeliever today brings confusion into the fold of God and turns aside His purpose. (2) For divorce (2:13-15). Divorce was the source of great sorrow—even the tears of the wronged women covering the altar (v. 13). The offerings of a man who had thus treated his wife would be an abomination to God. The tears of wronged women today are going up to God and make even the prayers of some men an abomination to Him. (3) Public wrongs (3:5, 6). (a) Sorcery—magic. Those who practice such things should be regarded as public offenders. (b) Adultery. This is a sin of wider extent than the parties concerned. (c) False swearing. (d) Oppression of the hireling, widow and fatherless. (e) Turning aside the stranger from his rights. (4) Blasphemy (3:12-15). They openly spoke against God asserting that it was profanity to serve Him.

III. The Severe Judgments Which Shall Befall the Nation (3:15; 4:1-6).

1. By Whom Extended. This is done by the Lord. Judgment has been committed to the Son of God (Acts 17:30, 31). When Christ returns the faithful and the unfaithful shall be differentiated and rewarded according to their deeds.

2. Time of Second Coming of Christ. John the Baptist was the forerunner of His first coming. Elijah shall be the forerunner of His second coming.

3. Result. For the righteous it will be a day of healing and salvation. To the wicked it will be a day of burning and destruction. A book of remembrance is now being kept. A day of retribution is coming.

God Will Give His Strength. Every man and woman, intent on walking in the path of rectitude, should become impressed with this truth enunciated by Phillips Brooks: "No man has laid hands upon the absolute assurance that the right is right and that the God of righteousness will give His strength to the feeblest will in all the universe which tries to do right, has a man summoned to his aid the final perfect help."

The New Book. Only as the Bible is approached in the human way, with an honest purpose to know what it is, and how it has come to us, and what it has done, can we rightly appropriate to ourselves its teaching, and understand the nature of its inspiration. We may see it in a new light, but it will be to us a new book, and it will speak with new power.—The Congregationalist.

Tongway Screamed and Started Away.

"I guess you don't want to be charged with another murder, eh?"

"How'd that?" said Wilton. "You don't fix no murder on me."

"Come here!" said Wilton, taking him by the arm and leading him to the door of the bedroom.

The moon, sloping in the west, threw a flood of light on the white face of Julius, showing the crushed skull and the blood-clots that stained the pillow. Tongway screamed and started away, but Wilton held him fast.

"What you want to know?" babbled the outlaw.

"Where were you three going to meet afterward?"

"In de clubhouse of de fishing camp at Chain of Lakes, twelve miles south," groaned Tongway, sinking back against the wall.

"That's where we'll find them," said Andersen.

Wilton handed him the revolver. "You'll guard your prisoner, and hand him over to the police when they arrive," he said.

Then he saw men running toward the shack and stepped outside. It was the party whom he had sent to the portage.

"They're gone!" panted one of them.

"Gone? What do you mean?" shouted Wilton.

"Miss McDonald and the factor. They went to bed last night. Now—they're not there. There's been foul work done, and a fight. Her room is all in confusion, the bedclothes dragged into the store, a pitcher smashed to pieces."

Andersen pulled at Wilton's sleeve. "We'll catch the horses at the muskeg," he said. "You stay here. It's our job, sir."

"No, it's my job, Andersen," answered Wilton, "and, by G—d, it'll be a thorough one!"

ALL CANINES NOT COLOR BLIND

Belief That Has Long Been Held Is Now Declared To Be Entirely Wrong Impression.

An eminent authority once asserted that all dogs were color blind. He quoted, in support of his statement, the case of two pug dogs who were unable to distinguish the difference in color of the plates from which they were fed.

The color sense may be entirely lacking in pug dogs, which are not renowned for their sagacity; but to assume that every other dog is color blind is a deduction far from the truth.

Not only can dogs be trained to recognize color, but they possess the natural color sense in a very high degree. They can differentiate between various subtle shades and tones, and their likes and dislikes are strongly developed.

The consumption of wines and liquors has increased rapidly in Germany since the war.

A fox terrier has been known to follow at a distance a perfect stranger, solely because she was wearing a dress similar in color to that worn by his mistress. Only upon approaching the woman did he find his mistake.

After That He Evaded Traps.

"Why have I never married?" the confirmed bachelor repeated a leading question. "Well, once upon a time in a crowd I trod on a lady's gown. She turned, furiously, beginning, 'You clumsy brute!' Then she smiled sweetly, and said: 'Oh, I beg your pardon, I thought you were my husband. No, it really doesn't matter in the least.' And when I came to think it over I decided that I'd better let marriage alone."

THE REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES

JUDGING from the large number of votes cast and the unusual interest manifested at the Republican Primaries on Saturday last, the approaching campaign will be one of the most vigorous in the history of New Castle County.

The candidates nominated will receive not only the unanimous support of the party, but will draw heavily from the independents.

The Republicans have selected State and County tickets that are entitled to the unanimous support of the party and they will receive it.

Formerly Democrats were encouraged by Republican factionalism, but in the present contest, during the last few years, the Republicans are united, and that fact will produce a listless Democratic campaign.

The Key That Unlocks The Door to Long Living

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

MINISTER'S CHRONIC INDIGESTION HELPED

Advices Stomach Sufferers to Use Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules

Rev. J. H. Watrous, Baptist pastor of Jamestown, N. Y., knows what it is to suffer the pains of chronic indigestion. He speaks from experience. When he recommends to other stomach sufferers the sure means of relief which he found so helpful.

In an open letter addressed to "Fellow Sufferers from Indigestion" he writes: "I would advise and urge that any person suffering from the many sorts of indigestion proceed at once to give Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules a fair, thorough trial. I have had much personal and painful experience with what has come to be Chronic Gastric Indigestion. Very naturally have tried many different remedies. Am now using above named remedy with very pleasing results. Give them a trial."

Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules are quick, sure relief for indigestion, dyspepsia, sour stomach, heartburn, gas and constipation. There is no fuss or bother. Simply take one or two capsules and a swallow of water and get prompt relief. They are sold under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

Physicians who have been told the formula for making Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules agree that the ingredients are of excellent medical value in relieving indigestion and dyspepsia. These capsules are superior to pills and tablets which often become hard and pass solidly through the digestive tract.

Their pure gelatin covering dissolves within one or two minutes after entering the stomach, releasing the ingredients to begin their pain-easing relief quickly. Try them if you have indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, catarrh of the stomach, dizziness after eating, gas or heartburn.

SHUT OUT WATER AND DUST

Nature Has Provided for the Hermetical Closing of Nostrils of Seal and Camel.

Most of us when we go in for diving have the very unpleasant experience of getting our nostrils full of water. Nature did not design man to be a diving animal, otherwise she would have been as clever with his nose as she has been with seals, London Titt-Bits says.

The seal is, without doubt, the cleverest diver in the animal world, and his nose is a very ingenious contrivance indeed. Each nostril is provided with muscles which close it hermetically at the owner's will. And the shape of the nose is such that when the nostrils are closed not a drop of water can enter.

With seals the closing of the nostrils at the moment of diving has become an automatic process.

This is wonderful enough, but we can see a still more remarkable application of the same principle in an animal as far removed from the seal as a camel is from a seal.

The seal is a water animal. The other owner of tripartite nostrils is the camel, an inhabitant of the driest parts of the world, the waterless sandy deserts. Now, why should the camel require such an apparatus? He is not troubled with water, but he is troubled with dust; not the dust that we see in this country, but the fierce, blinding duststorms of the desert.

These are so violent that tiny particles are driven into the works of even the most finely made watch, which becomes at once useless and useless. If the camel had not nostrils which were perfectly dust-tight he could never endure the dreadful sand and dust storms.

PAID TRIBUTE TO VIOLINIST

One Bull, the famous Norwegian violinist, on a visit to Nashville, Tenn., sometime in the forties, was invited to play in a rude hall, where but a rudely constructed platform had been erected, and the rough boards had not even been carpeted.

A lady who was known as an accomplished musician and one of the most elegant women in Nashville, noticed this. In order to convey her admiration for the artist and her regret for the commonest of the surroundings, she took off her large costly, black velvet mantle and spread it out smoothly on the rough floor near the edge of the stage where he would be expected to stand.

A few moments later the great master appeared on the stage and the audience eagerly watched to see what he would do. He advanced bowing and smiling and as he reached the hand-some mantle lying there he made another costly bow.

Then he stepped to one side, drew his bow across the strings of the violin and began to play. Philadelphia Factor.

To Clean Aluminum

This is so much used now, owing to its lightness, cleanliness and its attractive appearance, that perhaps a word or two as to its preservation and cleaning may be of service to some of my young housewives. As soon as any utensil is done with, either saucepan, kettle or teapot, wash it out at once. It is sometimes necessary to make a warm bath, and pour this into the saucepan or teapot, and with a soft cloth wash out the inside; rinse and dry at once. The kettle should be turned upside down when not required for some hours, so that all the moisture drains out through the spout. Teapots should never stand with tea in them after the meal, but emptied, rinsed and wiped dry with a clean cloth, then turned upside down for the spout to drain dry. Soda should not be used on any account. To polish the outside wash with warm soapy water; dry, and dust a little fine whiting on a soft cloth and rub the surface with it, using a leather afterward as a finish. Metal polish, invaluable for brasses, is not suitable for aluminum.—Scottsman.

Scots Help Each Other.

"Scotsmen help each other naturally," writes Admiral Dundas in his book, "An Admiral's Yarns." "If a Scotsman has to choose between two men of nearly the same caliber, the one being an Englishman while the other is a Scotsman, he will choose his own countryman."

"One of my discoveries has been that, while Scotsmen abroad are as a rule a splendid lot of fellows, those at home remain very, very narrow. I have heard it said that an Edinburgh man seems to think that the world begins at the Calton hill and ends at the Haymarket station. One would almost feel inclined to believe that that is true."

St. Louis Woman Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered with cramps and pains every month and had backache and had to go to bed as I could not work. My mother and my whole family always took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for such troubles and they induced me to try it and it has helped me very much. I don't have cramps any more, and I can do my housework all through the month. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends for female troubles."—Mrs. DELLA SCHOLZ, 1412 Salisbury Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Just think for a moment. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been in use for nearly fifty years. It is prepared from medicinal plants, by the utmost pharmaceutical skill, and superior methods. The ingredients thus combined in the Compound correct the conditions which cause such annoying symptoms as had been troubling Mrs. Scholz. The Vegetable Compound exercises a restorative influence of the most desirable character, correcting the trouble in a gentle but efficient manner. This is noted, by the disappearance, one after another, of the disagreeable symptoms.

James Cut the Knot.
Shortly after being made a peer, Lord Magheramorne, who was better known as Sir James McGarel Hogg, went to dine at the house of an old friend, where he announced himself to James as "Lord Magheramorne." "What?" said the startled domestic. "Lord Magheramorne," said he, with emphasis.

James shook his head. He despaired of attempting to render the uncouth guttural. What was he to do? The visitor was advancing to the drawing-room.

James hesitated a moment, then boldly rung open the door and proclaimed, "The late Sir James Hogg!" —London Tit-Bits.

UTILITY IN KNITTED APPAREL; ACCESSORIES IN LATEST MODE

WHO would have thought that "knitted" should come to be a word of such vast importance! Once a synonym for grandfather's gay fringed nuba and grandmother's protecting shawl, it has risen from humble origin to the very pinnacle of fame, for true it is that "knitted" is one of the leading words in modern style-vocabulary.

Having passed through the period when knitted underwear was considered a sports item only, we are cultivating an appreciative understanding

The autumn modes further the cause of accessories and the long list grows longer. Sashes and girdles have a new rival in ornaments used as a finishing touch on drapery that is characteristic of the season's gowns. Veils play the role of hat trimmings in addition to their usual business of covering the hat, keeping the hair neat and, incidentally, adding values to the complexion and eyes. Earrings increase their hold on the feminine imagination and grow more elaborate, girdles and sashes make of its adaptability to dress for all occasions. This is especially true, now that style-motif and novelty has entered so largely into the fashioning of the knitted outer garment.

Of course, most everyone, these days, owns a sweater or two, a scarf, or perhaps a cape; but for sheer joy of possession, if you have not already done so, acquire a knitted one-piece dress or three-piece suit.

The big stores and various style exhibits are showing an array of stunning models. These embody embroidered effects, heather mixtures; also startling black and white combinations. There are Indian and Navajo designs colorfully interwoven, gorgeous Ukrainian patterns and one of the loveliest themselves conspicuous with rich emblems. This is especially true, now that style-motif and novelty has entered so largely into the fashioning of the knitted outer garment.

Where there are so many only a glimpse of the styles is possible in a group of accessories. A very handsome sash is illustrated, richly embroidered with beads; it will convert a plain suit or crepe frock into a costume for state occasions. To the right is a fox fur scarf, which terminates in a head and tail; these and the narrower fur chokers of smaller skins are fashionable. Just below it a frilled collar of net and lace illustrates the kind of neckwear

Among the Accessories.

Items is a pure white knitted dress consisting of blouse and skirt.

Now that suitable schoolgirl attire is the subject, paragon, why not include a knitted one-piece gown or three-piece suit in daughter's wardrobe? Very practical designs, styled along simplicity lines, are available.

Two very desirable models are shown here. The one is an inter-knitted brown silk and buff woven dress; half-length sleeves, collar with rounded V neck; upper part solid color; skirt with buff stripes; brown silk tie girdle.

The two-piece consists of tuxedo coat and skirt of knitted fabric in a modish red brown.

More Fringe.

The fringed effect so popular in tweeds is being used on the white flannel skirts for summer. Other loose weave materials have yarn designs woven in by means of big stitches.

Colored Voile.

Colored voile makes serviceable and attractive curtains for summer home or breakfast room. You can dye the material at home if you cannot find at a store just the color you desire.

Mole Fur.

Mole promises to be one of the leading furs for fall. Fur coats for the coming winter show a tendency toward a close armhole which does away with the bulging almost inevitable with kimono sleeves.

Crocheted Hats.

Crocheted hats are very popular now for pastime wear, and crocheted belts with big tassels on the ends of the streamers are liked for one-piece frocks.

FRILLS IN FAVOR

Lingerie Blouses Again Demand Milady's Attention.

Plan Gives Opportunity for Revival of Some of the Delightful Old Fashions.

That the revived interest in lingerie blouses is not a fleeting one is proved by the consideration given them by the world's greatest dressmaker, notes a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. Models showing all sorts of interesting variations of the lingerie blouse are shown.

There are women who consider a touch of white at the neck of their coats smart, and others who do not. Individual tastes may differ in this matter, so far as style is concerned, but opinion cannot be divided as to the becomingness of a frilly blouse with a tailored coat.

It is lamentable that such a charming fashion should for the last few years have been considered provincial, and it is quite delightful to see the frilled collar of organdie, sheer linen and dimity again appearing with the smartest of one-button coats. Nothing is more becoming than the old-time navy blue suit accompanied by a white lingerie blouse. From all indications we are about to witness a return of this youthful and becoming style.

Frills are much in evidence on the new blouses. Even the Russian blouse has departed from the ways of its progenitors and has taken unto itself frills. There are blouses of fine white pique with high Russian collars buttoning over to one side and having smart jabot frills of linen.

The frilled blouse gives an opportunity for the revival of some of the delightful old fashions. It means the renaissance of various types of collars made famous in history. It means the revival of lovely old laces as trimmings for these collars.

Designers and manufacturers are working to the utmost of their capacity creating models embodying the characteristics that made the frilled

FOR THE TEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Pongee, Lace, Dotted Swiss, Organdies and Other Sheer Materials Are Being Used.

Pongee, either in natural color or dyed, makes a good looking and serviceable negligee with a bit of embroidery in self or contrasting color constituting the trimming.

Lace plays an important role in the development of the more elaborate boudoir garments. Sometimes a lace coat will top a plain slip or pajamas of silk, and again a straight, chemise-like negligee may be made of panels of lace and panels of a cord-plaited chiffon or other sheer silk.

Boudoir garments for warm weather wear are made of dotted Swiss, bright flowered organdie and other sheer cotton and linen materials. An attractive pajama garment recently seen featured blue linen for the pajama part with long smock of blue and white dotted Swiss.

Don't Spoil the Frock.

The most charming little dress may be utterly ruined so far as style is concerned if it is cut too long. If one feels that these dresses must be cut long enough to take care of shrinkage, put a tuck in the under side of the hem. That will solve the problem.

Silk Hand Bags.

Silk hand bags seem again to be replacing those of leather. Blue and black moire are popular materials. These are frequently mounted with silver and jeweled frames.

IN THE LINGERIE NECKWEAR

Paris Started the Vogue and American Women Accept the Mode With Enthusiasm.

This seems to be a season of lingerie neckwear. At least, it is now quite possible always to have a lingerie collar between the neck and the frock. And at the same time to look smart. This is a condition some women have been hoping for a long time, says a fashion authority.

Paris started the vogue. And Americans accept it with more than their usual enthusiasm for a new dictate of Paris. For, as a nation, we have always liked the washable collar, crisp and cool and fresh, next our skin. To be sure, we took to the collarless frock, because we always take to the fashion, eventually, whatever it may be, that Paris launches. But it was a long time before most of us could bring ourselves to feel comfortable without some sort of light, washable collar between our skins and the world.

So do we go back to the washable collar with—well, almost with gratitude. We welcome it with open arms, and are ready to invest much of our dress allowance in this dainty accessory.

Batiste, net, organdie, linen, georgette, crepe de chine and various cotton materials are all used in neckwear—not to forget a sort of sponge, a heavier, rough-surfaced material which Paris is sponsoring.

Some of the neckwear is elaborately embroidered, some shows an edging of Valenciennes lace.

There are some fascinating collars made of two sections that join at the shoulders. Of course, these mark the latest necktie, from which we are getting away in our frocks, but they are, nevertheless, most attractive. They are called bertha collars, and, perhaps the line they emphasize is more the Victorian off-the-shoulder line than the newer bateau.

It is quite usual for cuffs, of the deep mousquetaire style particularly, to go with the new collars. The cuffs are, of course, treated like the collars, trimmed with embroidery, lace or laticework.

then they will have to make a brave effort, for it seems as though more had been accomplished this season than for many seasons past in the direction of making the lady look at home and happy in the element of her dressing.

DRAPING RAGE ON DRESSES

Decoration Has Characteristic of Making Its Wearer Display Air of Contentment.

As you walk along the streets now, you see crepe dresses that are draped. They have the happiest sort of way of flying in the breezes and it matters not where the draping begins or where it ends, still it has that characteristic of making its wearer look as though she were about to depart on the sweetest and happiest of missions.

If ever women have reached the acme of their own expression in dress it is during this present season, for everything that is done in the way of clothes for them is something of which they can justly be proud.

COAT FROCK IN PEWTER GRAY

This beautiful coat frock in pewter gray cloth, one of the latest in fashions from abroad, is embroidered with steel studs with fastenings of rose crepe de chine.

blouse hold a prominent place in fashions for so many years.

The popularity of the tailored suit for fall has created a demand not only for blouses of the frilly sort, but has brought into favor the vest blouse as well as silk, chiffon and lace blouses of a dressy character, which, when worn with a plain two-piece suit, transforms it into an afternoon costume.

GARMENTS FOR THE BOUDOIR

Pongee, Lace, Dotted Swiss, Organdies and Other Sheer Materials Are Being Used.

Pongee, either in natural color or dyed, makes a good looking and serviceable negligee with a bit of embroidery in self or contrasting color constituting the trimming.

Lace plays an important role in the development of the more elaborate boudoir garments. Sometimes a lace coat will top a plain slip or pajamas of silk, and again a straight, chemise-like negligee may be made of panels of lace and panels of a cord-plaited chiffon or other sheer silk.

Boudoir garments for warm weather wear are made of dotted Swiss, bright flowered organdie and other sheer cotton and linen materials. An attractive pajama garment recently seen featured blue linen for the pajama part with long smock of blue and white dotted Swiss.

Don't Spoil the Frock.

The most charming little dress may be utterly ruined so far as style is concerned if it is cut too long. If one feels that these dresses must be cut long enough to take care of shrinkage, put a tuck in the under side of the hem. That will solve the problem.

Silk Hand Bags.

Silk hand bags seem again to be replacing those of leather. Blue and black moire are popular materials. These are frequently mounted with silver and jeweled frames.

IN THE LINGERIE NECKWEAR

Paris Started the Vogue and American Women Accept the Mode With Enthusiasm.

This seems to be a season of lingerie neckwear. At least, it is now quite possible always to have a lingerie collar between the neck and the frock. And at the same time to look smart. This is a condition some women have been hoping for a long time, says a fashion authority.

Paris started the vogue. And Americans accept it with more than their usual enthusiasm for a new dictate of Paris. For, as a nation, we have always liked the washable collar, crisp and cool and fresh, next our skin. To be sure, we took to the collarless frock, because we always take to the fashion, eventually, whatever it may be, that Paris launches. But it was a long time before most of us could bring ourselves to feel comfortable without some sort of light, washable collar between our skins and the world.

So do we go back to the washable collar with—well, almost with gratitude. We welcome it with open arms, and are ready to invest much of our dress allowance in this dainty accessory.

Batiste, net, organdie, linen, georgette, crepe de chine and various cotton materials are all used in neckwear—not to forget a sort of sponge, a heavier, rough-surfaced material which Paris is sponsoring.

Some of the neckwear is elaborately embroidered, some shows an edging of Valenciennes lace.

There are some fascinating collars made of two sections that join at the shoulders. Of course, these mark the latest necktie, from which we are getting away in our frocks, but they are, nevertheless, most attractive. They are called bertha collars, and, perhaps the line they emphasize is more the Victorian off-the-shoulder line than the newer bateau.

It is quite usual for cuffs, of the deep mousquetaire style particularly, to go with the new collars. The cuffs are, of course, treated like the collars, trimmed with embroidery, lace or laticework.

then they will have to make a brave effort, for it seems as though more had been accomplished this season than for many seasons past in the direction of making the lady look at home and happy in the element of her dressing.

DRAPING RAGE ON DRESSES

Decoration Has Characteristic of Making Its Wearer Display Air of Contentment.

As you walk along the streets now, you see crepe dresses that are draped. They have the happiest sort of way of flying in the breezes and it matters not where the draping begins or where it ends, still it has that characteristic of making its wearer look as though she were about to depart on the sweetest and happiest of missions.

If ever women have reached the acme of their own expression in dress it is during this present season, for everything that is done in the way of clothes for them is something of which they can justly be proud.

If future seasons are to surpass this as a matter of artistic achievement

CAR WASHING IS IMPORTANT TASK

Mud Should Never Be Allowed to Remain Over Night as It Is Injurious to Varnish.

USE PLAIN EVERY-DAY WATER

Guard Against Excessive Use of Soap and Let Hood Alone Until It Has Cooled—Go Over Entire Body With Hose and Sponge.

There is a proper time to wash an automobile and the work should be thoroughly done. If mud is allowed to dry on the car it is harder to get off and stains the varnish. Mud should never be permitted to remain on a car any longer than absolutely necessary, by any means not over night. All mud contains alkali, and in some parts of the country is almost clear alkali. Alkali has the same relation to varnish as muriatic or nitric acid has to steel. The antidote is water; isn't it simple, plain every-day water right out the tap.

If one expects to keep a fine car looking fine he must be willing to flush off the mud at night no matter how late it is; the work need not take more than half an hour and the work can be done thoroughly in the morning. The chief faults to guard against are the excessive use of soap, using water with too much force, and washing the hood before it is cooled.

In the old days no coachman would permit a fine carriage to go unwashed no matter how late he came into the stable at night. You must treat an automobile the same way if you reach the same standard that the old-fashioned coachman reached.

Soap Injures Varnish.
 There are two things that should be remembered. First, that soap, gasoline, or anything like them intended to cut grease, will attack varnish if allowed to stand on the car, because oil is an important part of varnish. Second, hot water takes the lustre from varnish.

First of all a car should not be washed out in the sun, because the sun will dry off the water too quickly, leaving water marks; choose a shady place with plenty of light. Dissolve a little good soap in a pail of water so as to make a soap solution. Have a soft carriage sponge ready. Start with the right hand front wheel and the under side of the fender and that part of the chassis nearby. Let the water flow from the hose in a gentle stream so that it will carry about six inches from the end of the hose. Go over the wheels, etc., first with water from a hose. Most of the mud will come off. There may be road oil or machine oil, which requires soap. In that case put some of the soapy water on these parts, sopping it up freely.

After that has been done start right in with a hose and sponge and wash off. Don't let the soapy water stand more than five minutes on the varnish. Now wash off thoroughly with clean water because all of the mud and grease should have come off by this time. Leave it alone to dry. That completes the right-hand front part of the chassis, and the same work should be done on the three other wheels and adjacent parts. That completes the work on the chassis.

Use Hose and Sponge.
 Take another clean sponge and with the water still flowing gently from the hose start at the left-hand front of the body and flow all the dust off. There will be no need for soap because machine oil or road oil is never spattered on the body. After flowing the water on, then go over the entire body again with a hose and a wet sponge and wash it. Go entirely around the car, including the top of the fender to the left side, but don't wet the hood. It may still be varnished.

Now all the dirt has been flowed off and the sponge should be squeezed as dry as possible and all the water remaining on mouldings or in crevices should be picked up.
 After that is done, wash the hood and the top of the radiator. There may be some spatters of machine oil on the hood and if there are use a little soap locally, washing it off soon after it is put on. In any case, don't let the water stand more than five minutes on the hood because it has become heated by the engine and the lustre will be damaged.

AUTO WITH AIRPLANE PROPELLER

The weird car shown in the illustration, the "Eolia," was invented and made in Paris and now is startling the staid and stolid inhabitants of London as it runs through the streets of the big metropolis.

The eight-horsepower engine is geared to a small airplane propeller revolving within a circular guard, while the body has a long taper to avoid "drift."

Steering Gear Alignment.
 In adjusting the steering gear for best motion, great care must be observed lest the parts be set so close together as to bind. After completing the adjustment, the gear should be tried through its entire lock, to make sure that the alignment is perfect.

Mistakes Will Happen.
 Never misjudge the gear shift of the car for the emergency brake, nor the foot accelerator for the clutch pedal.

You Auto Know

That a simple test of whether the carburetor is properly adjusted is to run for a short distance—a quarter of a mile—with the throttle practically closed. Then, picking a space where the roadway is clear, step sharply upon the accelerator, thus opening the throttle wide. If the car speeds up smoothly and rapidly, there is nothing wrong with the carburetor. But if the pick-up is slow, this is an indication that the mixture of gasoline and air is too rich. If the engine splutters, spits and back-fires, the mixture is too lean—a condition which can be temporarily remedied by the use of the "chocker" or priming lever on the dashboard. In either case, it is advisable to have the carburetor adjusted as soon as possible, for, until this is done, the car will not develop the power which it should. This adjustment, however, should be handled by an expert, for "monkeying" with the carburetor has probably been the cause of more engine trouble than any other single piece of amateur experimenting. ## MOTOR LUBRICATING SYSTEM

Invention of Florida Man Insures Proper Distribution and Application of Lubricant.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a motor-vehicle lubricating system, the invention of P. H. Gaskins of Jacksonville, Fla., says: "The invention relates to lubricating systems especially adapted for motor vehicles. The object is to provide a system which insures a proper distribution and application of lubricant to the various elements such as the chassis, springs, steering mechanism, and other mechanism and elements thereof, and is especially adapted to utilize the forces presented by the exhaust of the power plant of the vehicle."

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

Keep the engine clean.

Flush the radiator occasionally.

Drain the vacuum tank of impurities.

Grease the wheel bearings at intervals.

Extra tires not in use on the car should be stored in a cool, dark, dry place.

Make sure the Jack is secure and in working order before attempting to take off a wheel.

Keep a careful record of the number of miles run and compare it with the records of each month past for gasoline and tires.

Don't carry spare tubes loosely in the tool box or under the seat; keep them in the special tube bags or wrap them carefully in soft cloth.

When a spotlight is used on the windshield post of a car, its rays should be focused to strike the road immediately in front of the right hand fender.

When working around the engine care should be exercised in the use of the machinist's hammer, which forms a part of the tool equipment of every automobile.

A driver of an automobile should never pass a vehicle proceeding in the same direction unless the road ahead on the left-hand side is clear for at least 100 yards.

GOOD HIGHWAYS

TO REGULATE ROAD TRAFFIC

Highways Authorities Must Be Given Wide Discretion as Conditions Vary Greatly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Regulation of the character and weight of highway traffic to prevent undue injury to the highway is an administrative matter and cannot be properly taken care of by detailed and arbitrary legislation. This is the conclusion of the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture, based on experiments to determine the effect of all kinds of traffic on road surfaces and observations on conditions throughout the United States.

Even in a single state conditions vary to such an extent that a load which may be carried on one road without injury may cause untold damage to another.

Main Highway in Indiana Community.

Under the average regulatory law thus far made effective, the greatest service has not been secured from the best roads, nor the safety of the lesser capacity roadways assured. The influence of sub-grade soils, tire equipment, distribution of load to the wheels, speed, and many other variables is too complex to be written into law.

The seasonal variation alone in the carrying capacity of the roadways, due to moisture conditions, is one of the most serious of all the causes of road damage. Highway authorities therefore must be given wide discretion in traffic regulation. The bureau urges that as a solution of the problem the state highway officials of each state be given broad powers, so that traffic can be regulated to suit conditions as they exist at any particular time.

ORGANIC MATTER IN SANDS

Material Unsuitable for Concrete to Be Investigated by Bureau of Public Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sands unsuitable for concrete on account of the presence of loam or other organic matter are to be investigated by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture and methods of treatment devised to make them safe for use.

Until recent years it often happened that concrete made of good cement and well-graded and apparently good sand, would disintegrate and become worthless. In such cases the poor quality has been attributed to all the different things which go to make a poor concrete.

A few years ago laboratory workers discovered the effect of organic matter in sand and devised a simple test to determine its presence in harmful quantities. The bureau now hopes to find methods of treatment so that such sands can be used. Samples of sand from all parts of the country are desired and anyone is invited to send in a sample in which the presence of organic matter is suspected, addressed to the Bureau of Public Roads, Washington, D. C.

ROAD BUILDING IN ARKANSAS

Highway Costing $2,000,000 Just Completed Near Pine Bluff in Jefferson County.

A $2,000,000 road has just been completed in the Northern Road Improvement district of Arkansas, near Pine Bluff including 75 miles of asphalt pavement and two-course gravel compaction, from Stuttgart and other points to the Jefferson county line. Motor trucks will now be able to pass over this highway with heavy loads of rice from the 90,000 acres of rice lands in that vicinity, affording cheaper and quicker access to the markets. Plans are now on foot for constructing a connecting road with Pine Bluff through Jefferson county.

TABLET MANY CENTURIES OLD

Recent Find at York, England, Declared to Be Most Important of Recent Times.

An ancient Roman tablet, said to be about 2,000 years old, has been discovered by workmen who were excavating for a new street on The Mount at York, England. The tablet is in a perfect state of preservation, the carving and lettering being as distinct as when first cut. The inscription lauds the virtues of the wife and family of a famous Roman author. The stone, which is over five feet high, is Tasterian, similar to the stone used in building the minster. It was buried to a depth of five feet. Near the site were also found the ruins of two men of the Roman period. Corporation officials state that this discovery is the most important of recent times. The ancient church of St. James' originally stood on the site. A new archbishop on his way to be consecrated in olden times, had to walk from this church to the minster in his hose. He usually rode from Bishopsthorpe to The Mount, and was there joined by the clergy, who always rode at St. James' church. The church disappeared several centuries ago.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

MARSHAL FOCH'S FIRST PIPE

French General Discarded Cigarettes When Great Offensive Against German Enemy Began.

The truth about Foch's famous pipe came out also on the Metz trip. It was dining in M. Poincare's private car. After dinner the prime minister said: "Fray smoke your pipe if you like, marshal." The soldier pulled a beautiful case, containing two handsome pipes, from his pocket. As the chief of state commented on their beauty, he said they were given to him by a group of American artists.

"Have you been smoking a pipe for long?" asked Poincare.

"My first pipe was on July 18, 1918."

"The very day you began the offensive that led to victory?" exclaimed Poincare.

"Yes. The cigarettes were fearful at the time, so I took to the pipe, like everybody else."

And that is the true story of the famous "peace pipe" of Marshal Foch, if we can trust Le Sufflet.
